

Hail hits Elk Point

Bruce Campbell

Staff Writer

John and Rose Shymkiw have something a little different in their freezer these days.

Hailstones as big as golf balls.

But the Shymkiws don't need to look in their freezer to remind them of the hailstorm which hit Elk Point, Aug. 9. All they have to do is look at all the damage at their farm, located approximately 9.5 km south east of Elk Point.

"Our shingles are ruined, the trees got damaged and our satellite dish has got really big holes in it," Rose said. "Plus 75 per cent of our crop is gone."

The Shymkiw weren't alone, the Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance in St. Paul reported they were 26 claims made in the Elk Point and St. Paul areas as a result of the storm.

However, it was not able to put a dollar amount on the extent of the damage because adjustors have not yet been able to access the damage.

For Rose, it was an experience which she will never forget.

"We have a three-story house and it was just like we were getting shelled," Rose said. "I've never seen anything like it."

The Shymkiws were able to get their cars parked in the garage before the storm hit. However, two older trucks were left outside.

"Our 1979 truck looked like someone had hit it with a ballpeen hammer," she said. "The windows on the '73 truck were shattered."

She added that when they inspected their crops they "were either flattened or broken."

Though they didn't have hail insurance they did have some crop insurance so they should receive some money if they have a particularly low yield.

Victor Stepa of Elk Point Insurance says they have received over 100 claims to damages to houses and cars.

He said it would be difficult to pinpoint an exact dollar amount to how much damage was done, but he thought it would be "in the six figures."

"This is going to cost insurance companies a lot of money," he said.

There are cars in the area that had up to $3,000 done to them as a result of the storm, he said. Homes in the path of the storm suffered broken windows, battered siding and ruined shingles.

Even Elk Point town council was effected by the intensity of the storm.

Council's regular August 9 meeting was suspended for ten minutes because of the noise caused by hailstones hitting the roof.

A torrent of rain accompanied the hail, and streams of runoff the width of a vehicle plus half the width of the sidewalk gurgled past the Town Office for more than an hour after the storm moved on.

Residents request rezoning

Two residents of an area presently zoned as commercial property visited Council last week to ask that consideration be given to rezoning the lots on the east side of 51 Street between Railway Avenue and 49 Avenue to residential.

The residents noted that under the present regulations, renovations to their homes are strictly limited, and one cannot even build a garage on these properties. In case of fire, a homeowner would not be allowed to rebuild. These factors make it difficult to sell these homes, the residents say.

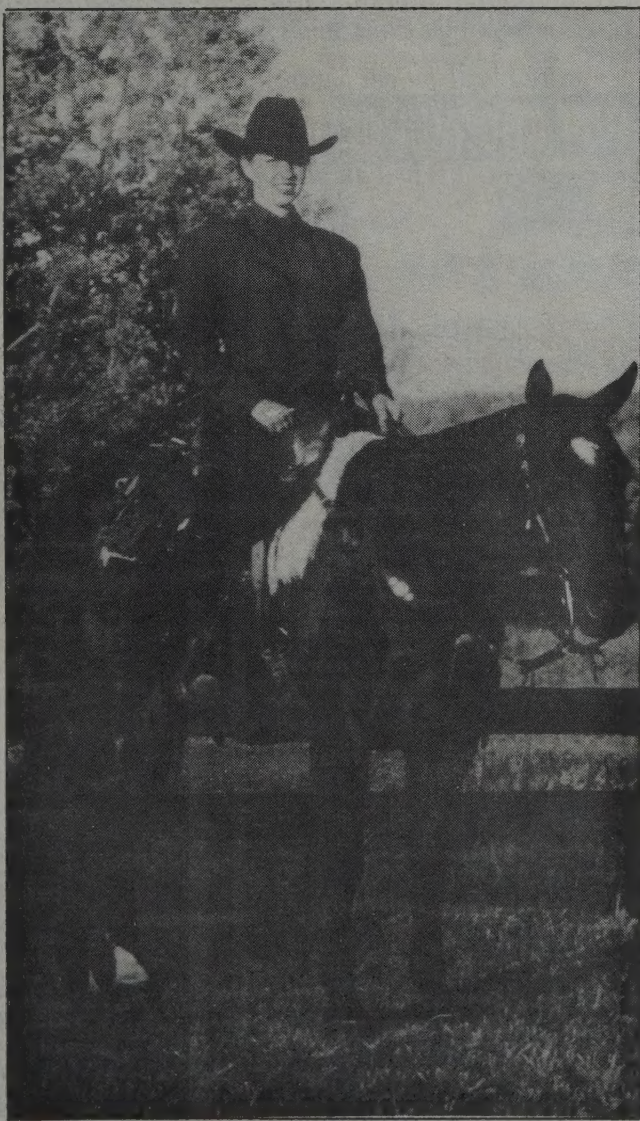

While the lots are zoned Commercial, "there hasn't been a commercial building in the area in the last sixty years," the homeowners said. They emphasized that there are several vacant commercial premises, and no urgent need to increase the town's business district at this time.

Mayor Buck cautioned the homeowners that there could be opposition from the business community to the rezoning, and also that rezoning could take time. However, the Town will look into the possibility of rezoning the property. The Municipal Planning Commission was later asked to do some research on the matter.

Make that two golds

Shanna Baker and her horse, Serene Liberty Lee, won not one but TWO gold medals, plus a silver, at the Alberta Summer Games in Wetaskiwin, August 5 to 8.

GOLD MEDAL EQUESTRIAN - Shanna Baker and Serene Liberty Lee brought home two gold and one silver medals from the Alberta Summer Games.

Last week's information, received direct from the Summer Games office, was incorrect, and we are very sorry for any problems this may have caused.

Miss Baker won gold medals in both Western Pleasure and Western Riding, plus a silver in Western Equitation, and was only one point away from winning a bronze in the Trail Class. Competition was stiff and the points were very close until the last go round on Sunday, according to Zone 7 Equestrian Coach Charlene Baker.

Tanya Kenyon of Elk Point and her horse Canadiana Red won a bronze in the Timed event of Flag Picking. Another Zone 7 Team member, Nicole Laberge of Wainwright, won a silver in Western Pleasure and Jody Pobuda from Viking won a silver in Barrel Racing and a bronze in the keyhole race. The North East Alberta Team was well represented in the medal standings and were fine ambassadors for our region.

The Team was very appreciative of Pan Canadian Petroleum of Elk Point for their sponsorship of team jackets. This made each member very conscious of the team effort and made the Northeast Alberta Equestrian Team stand out among the other zones, Coach Baker said.

Congratulations to the girls on a job well done.

The next Summer Games will be held in 1995 in Stony Plain, Alberta.

Matthews wins at nationals

Elk Point resident Joni Matthews jumped her way to a national championship Saturday at the National Legion Camp finals in Saskatoon.

Matthews, who runs for the North East Alberta Track Club, won a gold medal in the long jump in the 14-and-15-year-old girls division.

She also took home a pair of bronze medals by finishing third in the 400-metres and by being a member of the third-place Alberta medley relay team.

The 14-year-old Matthews won the long jump with a leap of 5.07 metres. She was clocked at 59.52 seconds for her bronze medal effort in the 400 metres.

"It's a great way to end the season," said NEAT coach Reg Green.

Water on town agenda

While runoff from a major downpour made 50th Avenue in the vicinity of the Town Office into a reasonable facsimile of the Mississippi River Monday evening, Town Council was in session discussing other forms of water, and their supply and disposal.

An information request regarding the tying together of two water lines which travel parallel courses up 51 Street was met by diagrams and explanations of water flow pro-

Tax bills anger some county residents

Rob Desjardins
Staff Writer

Some county residents are flinching at their tax bills this year.

A general assessment earlier this year, colored by new assessment rules, has increased some bills dramatically — in some cases, by hundreds of dollars.

"My taxes went from $917.65 last year, to $1,461.62 this year," May Magnan, a Crestview Beach resident, told The Journal on Thursday.

"That's too drastic a jump for our area. We have no garbage services. We maintain our own sewer. We have to drive on bad roads.

"Somebody better get their priorities straight."

Don Mudryk, a resident of the county's southeast wing, was also shocked by his reassessed taxes.

"They're over double — they jumped from $904.29 to $2,129.28," he said last week.

"Everybody's going to be jumping high about this."

But while Reeve Robert Bouchard conceded the taxes "are high," he said they reflect the cost of services county residents demand.

"I think people forget about the many other things we have to support in the county, such as ambulances," he said Friday.

"Just to send a child to school in St. Paul costs $2,000 per child."

The fluctuation in this year's bills is partly due to the province's new assessment guidelines, Bouchard said.

One of the key changes is the removal of "farm status" for people with agricultural land. This means the assessed value of agricultural land is no longer subtracted from the assessed value of farmers' homes — and assessments are, in some cases, much higher.

That, Bouchard said, may mean much fairer tax rates for people who never enjoyed farm status.

"There are a lot of people whose taxes went down this year, and I've yet to hear a complaint from them," he said.

"I don't think the new system is perfect, but I don't think it's all bad either."

"We don't have the time to do many of the extra things we used to do for our patients. Now it's simply whoever is the sickest, gets first attention."

NURSE DEBBIE SVEINSON, EDMONTON

ALBERTANS DESERVE A HEALTH CARE SYSTEM THAT PUTS THE NEEDS OF PEOPLE FIRST. As Canadians, we have the right to expect an affordable, comprehensive level of care, easy access to services and equal treatment regardless of our age, gender, income or race.

ALBERTA nurses believe there are ways of reforming the health care system without jeopardizing its quality. Random cuts are not the answer. We need a plan. Given the chance, nurses could save taxpayers' dollars by providing more community-based health services that focus on care and keeping people well.

NURSES want to help provide a superior health care system to Albertans. But government cuts that close hospital beds, reduce funding to community health services, and lay off staff are hurting a health care system that is the envy of the world.

IN government roundtable talks, nurses will be representing the needs of Albertans in health care reform. ALBERTA NURSES INVITE YOU TO CONSIDER THE DIFFERENCE NURSES CAN MAKE.

NURSES AREN'T PART OF THE PROBLEM. WE'RE PART OF THE SOLUTION.

IN HER EIGHTEEN years of experience, Debbie Sveinson can't remember feeling so disheartened in her work as a nurse caring for children who are battling cancer.

Sveinson says cuts in nursing positions have put a greater burden on families, who try to do the things nurses can't. "Someone from the family needs to be there most of the time. We used to read these children stories and give them bedtime snacks, like they would have at home. Now we can't. The children are lonely, sometimes they cry themselves to sleep."

Sveinson knows health care spending must be re-examined. But in trying to save money, she says the government cannot lose sight of the real job of health care: satisfying the needs of the patient. "Patients suffer and we're not meeting their needs."

SUMMER PLAY

The theme for this last week was animal week. We made a trip to Steve Ference's Elk and Buffalo farm. There we were able to see rainbow trout, the elk, and we were able to see the buffalo close up. Thank you to both Steve and Lawrence Ference for taking time out of their busy schedules to give us this tour. It was greatly enjoyed by all the children. We also had the chance to pet some live rabbits and a hamster. As well, we made different kinds of animal crafts. See you next week.

WHAT CAN YOU EXPECT FROM FAMILY DAY CARE WITH ELK POINT CHILD CARE SERVICES?

Many private child care arrangements work well. The advantage of using an approved family day home is that you can expect certain standards of care and certain services.

The main responsibility for choosing the home that best suits your child belongs to you, the parent. Elk Point Child Care Services respects the choice of the parent. Before children are officially assigned to a home, both the parent with the child and the Provider meet together in the Family Day Home. All parties agree to try the arrangement before beginning.

The responsibility for ensuring children are properly cared for in Family Day Homes is shared with parents, by government, Elk Point Child Care Services, and Family Day Home Providers. All of us work together to ensure each child is properly cared for in the home.

If you have any questions about becoming an Approved Family Day Home Provider or if you have any questions about having your children cared for in one of these homes, feel free to call Deanna Easthope, Coordinator, at 724-3933 anytime or on Fridays at the Community Services Office, 724-3800.

Editorial

Hail hath no fury like a threatened gardener

Billie Milholland

We decided to slow down this spring and smell the flowers, by planting our first garden in 8 years. We made an elaborate, on-graph-paper garden plan and I resigned from enough committees and boards to allow time for hauling rabbit manure for fertilizer and old hay for mulch. We got started a little late but our enthusiasm made up for our tardiness. We planted and weeded, watered and mulched, staked and pruned during every spare minute we had. This may sound like hard labor to some, but for us it was just what we had hoped for; calm, stress relief and satisfaction.

Finally, by the end of July, the zucchini had little dark green fingers, the cucumbers had smaller pale green fingers, the tomatoes had three inch round fruits and the sunflowers rose magnificently over all. We robbed a few hills of potatoes for a whole meal of dilled new spuds with their rosy red skins still on. We ate long, tender beets, beet greens and onions. The carrots were little orange pencils, the peas finally decided to make pods and the peppers, oh, the peppers. Six green pepper plants with at least four splendid peppers each and more little white blossoms calling to the bees. It was perfect.

Then, on Monday, August 9th, I put supper on the stove, then stood on the back porch to admire the rolling, boiling clouds approaching from the west. Good. More rain. I'm one who believes that after 7 years of drought there can't be too much rain. The phone rang. It was my husband John calling from a job 10 minutes west of town.

He spoke with deceptive calm. "Got hail there yet?"

"Hail?" My hair stood up. "Hail?"

"Yah. We got golf balls coming down here and it's heading toward town."

If he'd said any more he'd lost me by then. Hail? What did you do to counteract hail? I knew to throw blankets and old coats over everything to ward off frost but hail was bigger and harder and fell out of the sky like stones.

Sticks. If I had some sticks, I could prop up the blankets and towels (I don't have any old coats). I grabbed branches off the maple tree, shovels, rakes and dowels from John's shop. I snatched my five gallon pails from under the rain spout. I emptied cardboard boxes of papers and magazines. The wind picked up, conveniently increasing the adrenaline flow to my system. What a rush, I remember thinking. Statistics show that people who garden don't do drugs. There's a reason for that.

It started to rain as I madly shoved sticks, boards and brooms into the soil around cucumbers and zucchini. Don't panic, guys. I'll save you. I propped boxes over tomatoes. Light rain turned to a waterfall as I threw an old tarp over peas and pansies. Pea-sized hail started to rattle off the porch roof and jump like jelly beans on trampolines all over the lawn. I ran into the house and yanked towels off hangers and shelves and ratched into the yard to fling them over my crude frameworks. Hail grew to marble size, big marbles that stung where they hit. My smooth bottomed sandals slipped and slid all over the wet grass. I kicked them off and panted back into the house.

Mad now. All that work. All that nurturing. A week away from a major harvest. I shook my fist at the sky. You think you're going to flatten my food? I don't think so. I pulled blankets and quilts off beds and headed back out into the deluge. Rain and an amazing variety of hailstones hurled themselves at me. I ran over the frozen lumps in my bare feet and threw my bedding over tomatoes and peppers. Finally everything was covered that I had covers for. I was drenched to the skin and still the hail fell out of the sky. Then the tall stake that held up the giant Staking 100's started to tip over. Oh, no. I leaped off the porch, held it up against the house and stoically stood there, pummeled by hail and rain. That monster plant was covered with dozens of little cherry tomatoes. I was not going to let the storm have it. Lucky for me, the hail fell for only about ten minutes more. I was wet and cold but I felt primitively triumphant. It had been me against the elements and "my head was bloody but unbowed." Well, it wasn't exactly bloody, but I knew what the guy who wrote the poem Invictus meant when he wrote that line.

Our Past

By Steve Andrishak

A good many years before television came to our district, numerous travelling entertainers visited our community hall and performed before our audiences. Some were worthy of mention, while others were of the mediocre variety.

One entertainer I remember well, and one who was in a class all by himself, was a man who went by the title of "Green - the Magician." John Green was small in stature and in his late seventies when he first visited Elk Point during the middle 1940s. He always performed before sell out crowds and always put on an outstanding show. As a rule, if you didn't arrive at the hall early, you stood a chance of not being seated.

Green always travelled by train and usually brought about ten large trunks with him. They contained his costumes as well as other paraphernalia needed for his show. His magical performance always lasted a full two hours and was made up of a variety of acts which kept the large audience fascinated and spell-bound throughout the entire evening.

Green always started his show off by asking for a high school boy to volunteer his services as a helper. One of his early acts was to pull a number of links of what appeared to be sausage from the volunteer's midsection. Another was pulling a silk handkerchief from behind the boy's ear. Green always wore a green top hat which he carefully exposed to the crowd. He would then extract a white dove from it or make one disappear. During another act, he placed a dove in a square box and closed the lid. Upon reopening the lid a moment later, the dove no longer would be there. His most popular act was to make his helper lay in a long flat box. He then sawed through the middle of it with a hand saw. Everyone in the audience thought his boy helper was going to end up in two pieces, however that was not the case. This act proved to be an illusion, but it sure fooled the audience. His acts were many and varied and the large crowd in attendance seemed to enjoy every minute of it.

Green made one trip each year for about five years to perform before the people of Elk Point and district. As the operator of our local hall, I got to know him quite well. He was a very reserved type of person, one who never gave anyone a hint as to his past life. Most of the time he appeared to be sad and seldom did he smile. During his performance he seemed to take a leaf out of W.C.Field's book - Green, as well as W.C.Fields (a Hollywood comedian) always made out they disliked children and they both opened their shows by verbally blasting the children in attendance. During the rest of the show the children were a well behaved lot.

Green did have one bad habit I did not approve of - that of smoking about ten strong smelling cigars while waiting for the show to begin. During this time he was continually spitting out small parts of his cigar on my floor. I tried to cure him of this habit by providing him with a home made spittoon which he used, but only managed to hit about half of the time. As a result, I was continually mopping up after him. As Green provided me with my year's best income (25 percent of all the ticket sales) I had to be careful not to offend him for fear of losing his business.

Green - the Magician

Nothing further was heard of Green after his 1949 show. Later I heard he had died. I also learned something of his past life. Apparently prior to hitting the smaller circuits, he was a well known magician who performed in many major cities in both the United States and Canada. When he reached his early seventies he began to slow down and could no longer perform effectively in the large professional circuits. He then reverted to a less demanding audience by playing in smaller situations. Although he was judged past his prime when he visited Elk Point, he was still something to see. Undoubtedly he was one of the best entertainers to ever perform in Elk Point.

In later years, other itinerant magicians tried to follow Green's footsteps but they all badly failed - none could compare with him. I remember one magician who performed here in the early 1950s. His performance was so poor that in no time he was heckled by the crowd - some demanded their money back while others threatened to run him out of town. Needless to say, he never returned to Elk Point for a command performance.

It has been 45 years since Green - the Magician performed in Elk Point. Even after all those years, I can still see Green sitting on a bench smoking cigar after cigar, waiting for his evening show to begin.

SOMETHING NEW - Ruth Stone proudly displayed two of her Dexter Cattle at the Livestock Show. She now has a herd of five, and is enthused with the small but productive breed.

Greetings, Golfers, and Hi, Handicappers!
Welcome to the Elk Point Oilmen's 10th Annual Golf Tournament. We're looking forward to a weekend of great golf and super socializing. Thanks to our Tournament Chairmen, Roland Moneta and Ted Yarmuch, for their Herculean effort and on behalf of the entire association, I extend a special Thank You to all the "Patch" companies and individuals for giving tremendous support to this event over the years. You've helped make it a huge success. So shine the sticks, clean those cleats and wash your balls, it's time to swing!

Ian R. Huffman

Introducing the Elk Point parent nursery

Elk Point Parent Nursery will soon be getting underway for another season. For those who have not been involved with the Parent Nursery in the past, here is a brief run-down on the activities the group offers, and other information about the group.

Welcome to the Elk Point Parent Nursery. We are designed for mothers and their children (newborn to 5 years of age) to visit and interact with their peers. We operate from our own Parent Nursery room located in the Community Services Building. We are partially funded by the Town, Municipal and Provincial governments, and are governed by the Community Services Board members. We have been operating since 1979 and are a registered non-profit society.

We elect an executive (President, Secretary, Treasurer, card and phone moms) at the last meeting of the Nursery school year.

SCHEDULING

We operate from September to May inclusive, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The fee is $35 per year per family and is payable to: ELK POINT PARENT NURSERY upon your registration to our group. Moms and their children may attend two times before paying our fee.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

All parents registered with the Elk Point Parent Nursery are responsible for the care of our room and equipment (cleaning, tidying and repairs). We are a cooperative venture and need the support of everyone involved to keep our play group active and healthy.

We have a rotating schedule for cleaning our room which is done monthly, and each day the room must be tidy and orderly at the end of the session. Guidelines are posted on our bulletin board and chalkboard. We will set a rotating schedule for the monthly schedule for the monthly cleanups and post guidelines accordingly.

As our partial funding is being restricted, we have to do several fundraising activities, possibly host a comedy evening, participate in the Royal Purple Christmas Craft Fair, and hopefully host a bingo at the Club Bingo in St. Paul. We will need the support of ALL our members to make a success of our efforts. Our executive members will be in contact with each member to clarify our needs for our participation in each event.

The Parent Nursery offers a big thank you to Norcen Energy Resources and Superior Propane Inc. for their generous donation, and to the Elk Point Oilmen's Association for the opportunity to earn some much needed money.

Elk Point Parent Nursery provides crackers and juice for the children's snacks, and coffee and tea for our moms. Of course, food donations will be accepted and help us meet our budget.

Each week we would like to have one mom organize an activity of the day. Most supplies (depending on the activity) are available in the Parent Nursery room. Activities may vary from gluing, cutting, painting, coloring, folding, weaving, working with playdough, songs, finger plays, and games. Peek through the cupboards before your activity day to acquaint yourself with the supplies available. There are several ideas and resources in the top drawer of our filing cabinet and the local library has an excellent selection of ideas for activities. There will be an activity list on the bulletin board to sign up for the morning of your choice each month.

An average day's schedule may follow these guidelines:

9:30 - 10:40 - arrival; coffee and tea is prepared; moms visit and assist children in play;

10:45 - 11:00 - snack is prepared and clean-up;

11:00 - 11:15 - Activity mom organizes activity and clean-up 11:15 - 11:30 - moms split up and take children outside or to alternate playroom; other moms organize clean-up of room.

WHAT'S NEWS AT THE LIBRARY?

CANOE CHALLENGE CHAMPIONS - Looking back to Heritage Day weekend, here are the winners of the Great Canoe Challenge. Ian Mackenzie of Edmonton, his son Matthew and Sandy Wishart of Canmore were presented with their trophy plaque by Fort George - Buckingham House Director of Visitor Services Louise Crane.

SECOND PLACE PADDLERS - Tim (far right) and Cameron Zarowny, shown with four legged friend Maggie, put their Scouting skills to work to win the second place trophy in the Great Canoe Challenge, presented by Louise Crane.

THIRD PLACE TROPHY WINNERS - Shelley and Robert Tymofichuk placed third in the Great Canoe Challenge, and accepted their trophy from Louise Crane.

A FRIEND INDEED - Pat Johnson, a member of the Friends of the Forts, was presented with an annual pass to all of Alberta's historic sites by Louise Crane, who said Johnson "follows in the footsteps of the real voyageurs" with his continuing efforts on behalf of the Forts.

For your information

Last week we ended with the question, "What is the most eastern spot in North America?" A quick look at an atlas will show you that the spot is located on the coast of Newfoundland, at Cape Spear. The atlases are just one section of the library that can provide you with different forms of information.

Another service that the library offers is talking books, for those who are visually impaired. These "books" can be signed out for a period of six months. For more information, just give us a phone call at 724-3737.

This week, the Summer Reading Program has been busy building machines that are to help clean up the environment. These creations are on display just inside the library. If you look at Ernie's World, in the back Program Room, you will see that the children have been busy reading, and learning how to clean up the world.

Here are a few new children's titles that may interest you. Chin Yu Min and the Ginger Cat by Jennifer Armstrong, Little Star by Marita Conlon McKenna, Looking After Your First Monster by Frank Rodgers, and Mrs. Toggles Zipper by Robin Pulver. All of these books have bright colorful pictures, and are interesting stories for young and old.

In our Youth section we have The Twinkie Squad by Gordon Korman. The Twinkie Squad is a group of special students who find themselves in such mischief as making the school smell like fish, and having the principal on the verge of a nervous breakdown. If you think the Twinkie Squad could get into trouble, you need to read The Eyes of Kid Midas by Neal Shusterman. Kevin Midas finds a special pair of sunglasses that end up changing his desires into reality. Thanks to these glasses, he changes the lives of two classmates, forever. Finally, from our Youth section we have Rescue Josh McGuire by Ben Mikaelson. This is about another adventurous soul who decides that he is going to challenge his parents, the state government and nature to save a bear that was left all alone.

In our Adult section, the following titles look interesting: James Mitchener's Mexico, in large print; Death Watch, an Inspector Bill Slider Mystery by Cynthia Harrod-Eagles; A Book Of Angels by Sophy Burnham; Guardian by John Saul and Lizard Skin by Carsten Stroud.

We hope to see you, and hear any suggestions that you may have...

Utilities, Public works top agenda

vided by Public Works Superintendent Ron Fraess. He explained the reasoning behind the request to link the lines, at an estimated cost of $2000. Later discussion revealed that the link had earlier been agreed to, and will now go ahead.

The abandonment of water lines going to the hospital was also discussed. The lines, which lie on hospital property and were recently disconnected in favor of other supply lines, are not deep enough to withstand severe frost and could break during the winter, Council was told, and must be disconnected at the street.

Outgoing water also was on the agenda. The new pump for the sewer lift station has been ordered, and it is hoped the faulty one will keep working until its replacement arrives. It was noted that the faulty pump is not worth repairing for use as a standby unit, and since there is already a standby unit, is not needed for this function.

Tree roots which do their best to block the sewer lines to two homes on 51 Avenue are a perennial problem. One solution is to place a manhole on one of the lots, where the pipes join, to facilitate clean-out of the lines without going into the homes. This was approved.

Trees got additional mention later in the agenda, when the removal of trees and portions of trees and shrubbery from private property by Town crews was questioned by ratepayers. In the first of two cases, trees which were in danger of falling on power lines in high winds were removed from Town property, and since the property line pins could not be easily found, from the perimeter of an adjacent lot, with the owner's permission. This was done in the interest of safety. In the second case, workers were observed removing branches that overhang sidewalks and lanes, which was also done last year and was considered normal practice. However, a bylaw passed in 1984 states that trimming trees and shrubs overhanging Town property is, like clearing sidewalks of snow, the responsibility of the homeowner. Therefore, this practice will be discontinued, and only done if a property owner neglects to do so after being notified of the necessity, as per the bylaw. In such a case, the owner will be billed for the work.

The aforementioned bylaw deals with the maintenance of all property by its owners, and what is to be done if the property is not kept in good order. Letters have been sent to a number of property owners whose premises are unkempt, asking that steps be taken to tidy them.

Heavy truck traffic is having a serious effect on some local streets. Council agreed to a request from Superintendent Fraess, asking for a 75 percent load restriction to be placed on 54 Street from 50 Avenue to Railway Avenue and on 50 Avenue from 54 Street to the rural intersection 1/2 mile west.

RUTHENIAN UKRAINIAN GREEK CATHOLIC PARISH OF ST. MARY'S - has been served for nearly three quarters of a century by this handsome structure, built with loving care by its pioneer members, who also donated much of the materials and furnishings.

Three quarters of a century ago, pioneers in the Gideon and Angle Lake district, southwest of Elk Point, felt the need to build a church in which to worship their Creator. Through diligent effort on their behalf, the Ruthenian Ukrainian Greek Catholic Parish of St. Mary was established.

Times were hard, and money very scarce, but each family contributed what they could, and the church - the only original church in the area still standing - remains today as a tribute to those pioneers and their faith.

Prior to the completion of the church, services were held in homes, mostly at Harry Krawchuk's. From the beginning, the congregation was served by priests and missionaries from Mundare, with the first priest stationed at Angle Lake being Father John Cherkawski.

Two acres of land were donated as a site for the church and cemetery, one acre by Harry Krawchuk and one acre by John Woytkiw, two pioneers who came to the area in 1912. With a site established, each family pledged ten logs toward the building. Some had no way to haul the logs to the site, so those farmers who had oxen or horses took turns hauling for those who could not. The logs were stored on the site until finally, there were enough to build the structure. Andrew Sakowski was the head carpenter, and supervised the laying of the logs and creating the shape of the church. No nails were used, instead, the logs were pegged together.

The building was completed as money became available. A floor was put down in 1918, but an extremely harsh winter in 1919 found farmers using all available cash to purchase feed and household necessities, and in the spring, to replace livestock which succumbed to the severe weather. The summer of 1920 brought wonderful crops, but prices plummeted, a cow previously valued at $150 now being worth a tenth of that amount, and oats dropping from $1.25 per bushel to 6 cents. This trend continued until 1924, when prices and the economy improved. At that time, work on the church resumed, and 4000 square feet of shingles were purchased for $26. The following year, the logs were covered with siding, and windows, costing $156, were put in place. These windows were recently replaced, at a cost of $3900. The church's top floor was put down in 1928.

All interior fixtures were purchased by church members. Two of the paintings were brought from the Ukraine by Mary and Mike Bepalko, while others were donated by Harry Gulajec, Bill Hladchuk and others. Carolers raised the money for the candle lit chandelier, and ladies of the congregation turned their talents to embroidering the linen.

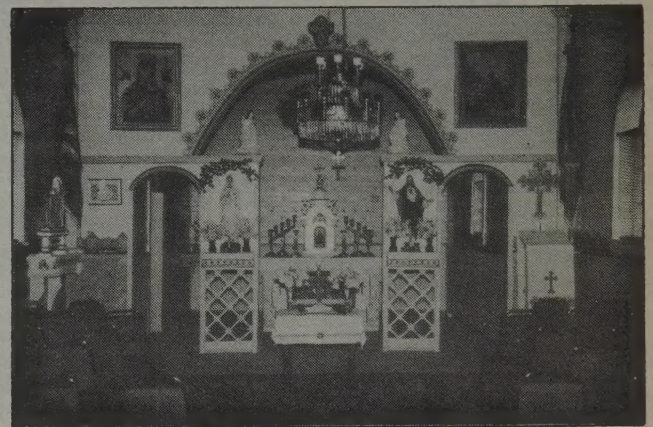

A constitution for the church was drawn up in 1927, and signed by Fred Gulajec and Alec Zajac, which states that as long as one member remains, the church shall not be altered or sold, and that the church belongs to the people and not the clergy.

In 1927, logs were brought in for the construction of a bell tower, to house a bell purchased in Vegreville by Micheal Woytkiw for $175, and temporarily installed on a frame. The bell stayed on that frame for 13 years before the bell tower was eventually built by a carpenter named Antamaniuk. The cross was installed a year later.

The Angle Lake Church stood in its original state until four years ago, when the congregation felt the need to spruce up their house of worship. New windows, doors, siding and shingles were installed, the interior was freshened with new paint and carpet, a new outhouse was built and, after 75 years of barbed wire, a chain link fence was erected. Renovations cost more than $14,000, not counting all the hard work by parishoners. To raise this money, bingos were held in St. Paul to supplement donations from the members. With great determination, the structure was refurbished just in time for the wedding of Shelley Bepalko to Robert Tymofichuk. Since then, another wedding has been celebrated in the church, that of Connie Nelson and Tim Smereka, close to seven decades after the first couple, Dorothy Lesyk and John Krawchuk, said their vows in the church.

The congregation currently consists of 20 member families, with Reverend Father Mark Bayrock as clergy.

This coming Sunday, August 22, will mark the 75th Anniversary celebration. Most Reverend Myron Daciuk, O.S.B.M., D.D. will officiate at the 11 a.m. services, which will be followed by a dinner prepared by the ladies of the church, at King George Hall. Tickets are available from Peggy Smereka, 724-3577, or Bev Bepalko, 724-4049.

Mrs. Smereka, who has undertaken the task of compiling a history book for the church, has already translated minutes books and more than 170 pages of accounts from Ukrainian to English. She is still looking for information on the members of the parish through the years, and would be very happy to hear from anyone with this information.
